

Speed Triples

In 1937, Speed Twin was an imaginative and appropriate name for Triumph's new 500. 'Speed Triple' seems every bit as fitting for a fast motorcycle with three cylinders. Why the Meriden men never used it instead of Trident is a mystery. Perhaps they just didn't think of it? Who knows, but a couple of years after the resurrection, Hinckley Triumph did, applying the legend to the flanks of their latest 900...

Triple Ecstasy

Triumph's Rhapsody in Black

